Innovative Sanitation Services in Kenya: Creating Profit from Fecal Sludge

Speaker: Cameron Zeller, Tanner Pacific Inc.

As water folks, we appreciate the value of effective wastewater management systems. We work hard to maintain and improve our sewer and wastewater treatment systems to serve our communities, and are lucky enough to live in a country where we have government funds and the regulatory framework needed to support our efforts. In urbanizing communities and refugee camps in developing countries, that type of support is not always available. This results in incomplete, poorly managed sanitation services, leading to widespread impacts that keep communities in cycles of poverty. Over the past 5 years, Sanivation has been designing, testing, and building sanitation systems that address these issues by removing human waste from communities, converting it into fuel, and selling that fuel to off-set the cost of managing their systems. Cameron will be presenting about their work with Sanivation over the past two years.
